Janet : BIOGRAPHY Roper

Janet Roper has long been fascinated by relationships.

Whether it is the relationship between humans and their pets, a person and a higher power, or musicians and their instruments, Janet has studied it in an attempt to understand it and help the person deepen those relationships and achieve harmony.

Janet was born and raised in Illinois. She majored in music education at Illinois Wesleyan University, receiving her Bachelor's of Music Education degree on violin in 1975.

Over the last three decades, Janet has taught music programs in Illinois, Louisiana and Minnesota. For the last 15 years, she has taught students violin, viola and piano out of her home. Her interest in adult amateur musicians led her to develop and teach a class entitled "Performing with Confidence: Decreasing Stress and Anxiety and Increasing your Potential for Peak Performance".

Janet has also played in various orchestras and ensembles in addition to doing graduate work in viola at the University of Minnesota. Currently she records and performs both as a soloist and with a vocalist and pianist.

TESTIMONIALS

“Janet’s music is good for the soul. She and Lucy (her violin) play with a heart and spirit that speaks to people of all ages and walks of life. She can read an audience/venue/need/situation and adapt the music to its very best, right on the spot. Hum a tune and Janet can play it. Suggest a mood, and Janet will honor it with music. Ask her to play nicely with others, and they’ll be friends by the end of the gig. Janet Roper is a delight! An enviable musician! She is a gift to all who hear her...”

~Melanie Heusier Hill

“Janet brings a warm and delightful energy to everything she approaches, including her music performances. Janet provided lovely background violin for an open house we hosted with wellness practitioners. The guests and all of the other hosts commented on how nicely Janet created an inviting mood.”
